The Republic of Moldova despite being a small country in Eastern Europe that does not possess big military and economic potential is a salient point on geopolitical map of the continent. It is a result of its location on the borderland of the mighty structures shaping the contemporary geopolitical lineup in the world – on the one hand the European Union and NATO and, on the other, the international organizations in post-Soviet area. The hybrid war, which has been waged in Ukraine for few years, drew attention of the world also on the territories, which in future could be absorbed by this kind of conflict. Among them, as it seems, one could enumerate Moldova.

The peer-reviewed academic journal “Ante Portas – Security Studies” (www.anteportas.pl/en) will dedicate the entire issue no. 1(8)/2017 to the subject-matter of the Moldova’s weight on geopolitical map of Europe. Therefore, we announce the beginning of the submission process to this issue, suggesting the following range of topics:

- ✓ Moldova towards the conflict in Ukraine;
- ✓ bilateral Moldova-Romania relations;
- ✓ bilateral Moldova-United States relations;
- ✓ bilateral Moldova-Russia relations;
- ✓ Moldova towards the European integration;
- ✓ the question of Transnistria within the context of international law, international relations and the future of Moldova’s statehood;
- ✓ Gagausian separatism and its ramifications for Moldova’s state system and society;
- ✓ the issue of Moldova’s society identity;
- ✓ Moldova’s financial security;
- ✓ Moldova’s energy security;
- ✓ the problem of corruption in Moldova;
- ✓ oligarchization of Moldovan economy and politics;
